

Skip is a rescued dog who wants to matter. He loves living in a blissful pack with his human couple, John and Lucy, and he has bow-vowed never to lose them. But when John walks out after seven happy years, Skip and Lucy's world is turned upside down. Skip is determined to guide Lucy through her identity crisis, but he's guarding a secret: he's to blame for the breakup and her broken heart.

Now, with the help of a hoarder neighbor, a stray cat, and a boy with autism, Skip must build a new pack for himself and Lucy before she discovers his canine treason and kicks him to the curb.

Teri Case is the award-winning author of Tiger Drive. A native Nevadan, she now lives in Washington, D.C.. She often travels—watching, learning, and writing about people who want to matter. In the Doghouse is her second novel.

“An engaging story about a woman and her canine overcoming heartbreak as a pack.”

—Kirkus Reviews

“The prose, especially the dialogue, is sharp and often clever. Skip's voice, in particular, is appealing and witty.”

—The BookLife Prize, PW
